

NJ acts

NJ ACTS Special Populations Core 2022 Seminar Series:

Tuesday, April 12, 2022

Zoom: 1:00pm - 2:00pm ET

Presented By:

Katherine (Kait) Hirchak, PhD

Assistant Professor
Elson S. Floyd College of Medicine
Washington State University

Culturally Re-Centering Evidence-Based Treatments Among Indigenous Communities

Dr. Hirchak is a federally recognized descendant of the Eastern Shoshone. In this seminar, Professor Hirchak will discuss approaches to culturally adapting evidence-based treatments among Indigenous communities with a focus on contingency management and medications for opioid use disorder. For almost 15 years, she has partnered with Tribal communities to address health inequities and enhance well-being. Dr. Hirchak's research interests, activities, and training include health policy, assessing alcohol and substance use disorder interventions among American Indian and Alaska Native communities, conducting clinical trials and mixed-methods research in diverse settings, and culturally adapting evidence-based interventions.

Zoom Meeting:

https://go.rutgers.edu/april_12

